Courtroom Filled With Women to Hear Equitable Officer's Testimony

THEY JUST GIVE "WILLIE" THE MONEY

He does not know much about it and says his salary was raised at various times without his asking it

(Scripps-McRae Dispatch.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Expecting Hyde to be called as a witness in the insurance investigation this morning, a large crowd, including many ladies, were present. Seats usually occupied by witnesses and attorneys were given to the women. Hyde accompanied by Attorney Utermeyer entered and appeared unconscious of the attention he attracted. Hughes read a number of letters from the Equitable official to A. C. Fields, expressing his disapproval of certain legislation pending at Albany. John McGuinness, comptroller of the Equitable, was the first witness.

Just "Handed" Hyde Money.
Hyde was called and there was a stir in the room as the young financier was sworn, and asked first about his connection with the Equitable. He declared he was educated by his father for the life insurance business. He was brought to understand he would succeed his father. He entered the service in the fall of 1898 as second vice president and felt qualified to fill the position. He declared his salary when he entered was $1,900. He accepted a salary of $30,000 continued to 1902 and increased to $75,000. When his salary was increased he was made chairman of the finance committee with increased duties. He insisted that in both cases the salary was offered fixed without a suggestion from him, but at the volition of members of the executive committee. He could offer no explanation of the testimony of Depew before Hendrick in which the senator said he was uncertain whether Hyde asked the increase, but thought he did and thought he wanted more than Alexander.

Hyde Is Embarrassed.
Hyde said he was given authority to receive money from the cashier without any other voucher than his own. He became a director in the Equitable trust company previous to 1901 and vice president later at a salary of $5,000 which was increased to $12,000. He claims much credit for building up the trust company and discussed syndicate operations. The square account which is a part of the "yellow dog" fund was subject of inquiry. Hyde could not explain "as the account had not been explained

FEASIBLE AUDITORIUM PLAN

Is the Plan of Normanna Sangerkor Developed Last Night

Committees appointed to arrange for the biennial saengerfest of Norwegian singers to be held in this city next July will co-operate with the La Crosse Musical association to effect the construction of a large auditorium for convention purposes.
At a meeting of the committees held last evening in the office of Register of Deeds Streeter preliminary steps toward this end were taken, and prospects for the construction of an auditorium are more encouraging than ever before.
If other organizations which expect to have state conventions here in the future can be interested in the same manner as the saengerfest committee the auditorium is assured.
The project talked of last night was to donate the amount of money needed to repair the Empire rink, to an auditorium fund, and by personal solicitation raise more funds for the purpose. It is proposed to have the Travelers and Elks and other organizations which expect to entertain conventions here next summer do a similar work.

She also wore white and carried chrysanthemums. After the ceremony, in which the ring was used, the wedding party was driven to the home of Mr. John S. League, father of the bride, 510 Oakland street. After a wedding breakfast and a generally happy time the wedding party took the train for Minneapolis. SETS HOUSE OF ENEMY AFIRE

Escapes to La Crosse in Boat, Nearly Fires Saloon, Then Flees City

Making his escape across the river in a rowboat after burning down the house of the man who sent him to the penitentiary for a similar crime two years ago, Frank Curley came to La Crosse and after nearly setting fire to a saloon fled from the city and is now a fugitive from justice.
Curley set fire to a barn on the D. J. Cameron farm in Pine creek valley a couple of years ago. Implicated with him in the crime was one Armstrong. The latter turned state's evidence, his testimony sending Curley to the state prison at Stillwater and furnishing immunity for himself. After the removal of Curley from the neighborhood Armstrong settled down and became an industrious truck farmer, making a home for himself in the village of La Crescent.
When Curley was released from prison a few weeks ago he went straight to La Crescent evidently with the desire of avenging himself on his old companion. He took possession of the Armstrong home during the absence of the occupants and when Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong returned they saw Curley through a window and feared to enter the place, fleeing to a neighbor's for protection. Eventually, however, they summoned courage to take possession of their home and Curley was ousted.
Last Saturday night, while Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong were in this city on a business mission, Curley is alleged to have set fire to the Armstrong house, reducing it to ashes. He fled from the village and came across the river in a rowboat.
The same evening he put in an appearance in Boma's saloon on South Third street and while there either accidentally or intentionally knocked over a kerosene lamp. Prompt action of the proprietor prevented a serious conflagration. He disappeared that night and is believed to have left the city.
People of La Crescent believe that Curley has a mania for setting fires. Officers of Houston county are searching for him.

EQUANIMITY IN CO. BOARD MEETING

No Fight Likely Over Tax Matter--Extras on Court House $5,224.74

Indications are there will be no bitter struggle in the annual session on the county board over the tax apportionment between the city and county. There seems to be a general disposition to accept the report of the assessment committee recommending that the ratio of assessment be 61 to 39 as just, and let the matter end there.
The annual session convened at 10 o'clock this morning. The time until noon was occupied with the reading of annual reports of the poor commissioners and insane asylum trustees.
Figures contained in the regular report of the building and grounds committee showed that since the completion of the new court house extras for the building had cost $5,124.94, and other improvements are in progress.

BOY FOUND IN STONE QUARRY

GREEN BAY, Wis., Nov. 14.—Lying in fifteen inches of water the body of Anton Tehman, 83 years old, who disappeared from his home in the town of Preble on Oct. 18, was found in the Duchateau stone quarry in Preble yesterday. There was nothing to indicate foul play, but there is a question as to whether the drowning was accidental or by design. Shortly before he disappeared the man is said to have complained that he was tired of life. He was a retired farmer and an early settler of Preble.

MARIONETTES AND SCHOOL GIRLS
MAKE HITBIJOU'S SHOW DE-CLARED SUCCESS

A snappy musical success.

Such was the general verdict on the Bijou theatre's new entertainment which opened to two crowded houses last night. Mantell's Marionettes, the opening feature, is an unusually fine attraction. Various scenes are represented and the musical numbers include selections from the "Sho-Gun" which were decidedly attractive. The hippodrome includes many new features for a performance of this kind and the marionettes are one of the most striking numbers on the bill.

Something entirely new and an innovation which made an immediate hit developed in the illustrated song, "Only a Soldier Boy," sung by Will Armond. The song is illustrated with moving pictures, with color effects which render it an exceptional novelty. The famous historical painting, "The Drummers," is represented in life and brought unstinted cheers from the audience. One of the scenes shows troops marching along the Hudson and the gayly decorated battleships on the river in the distance.

For real good music, instrumental and vocal and for a few minutes of clever repartee, Will Hart and May Dillon, in a refined musical act, took the premium. They play strange Japanese instruments, flute and piccolo, ring odd shaped bells, and perform on other instruments. Several of the latest songs are included in their repertoire.

Ladies and children should evince special interest in Musliner's animal act in which a trained herd of sheep and pigs are introduced. This act seemed more popular than anything else at the opening performance, as it would scarcely seem animals of this character had brains to perform the tricks they go through before the footlights.

But the most laughable specialty of the entire show is the "Boarding School Girls" out on a frolic, shown in the Edison Bijouetoscope. This feature, which was fully portrayed in the Tribune last night proved even more than the description could have indicated. All of the novelties of the famous Coney Island are shown with lifelike realism and every changing picture is a laugh.

The Bijou will undoubtedly enjoy unusually large patronage this week in view of the highly entertaining and instructive character of the show.

OF WITTE

Joseph Miron, who sings Murgeralo in "The Girl and the Bandit," which is soon to be heard here at the La Crosse theatre Friday night, is an old acquaintance of M. Witte and Baron Rosen and came aboard in a launch, putting to sea.

Hap Ward is said to have scored a genuine hit with his new musical storyette, "The Graftor." Sunday, Nov. 19th.

THE TRIUMPH OF MISS THURSTON

"Dainty Adelaide Thurston, one of the sweetest and most charming little women on the American stage, and an actress of rare ability, has at last been greeted by an audience of generous proportions in Williamsport," says the Williamsport, (Pa.) Gazette.

"She appeared last night in her new play, 'The Triumph of Betty,' and 'Teh Triumph of Adelaide Thurston' would have indeed been an appropriate title, for it is without doubt the best vehicle she has ever had to exploit her talents. The play, a four-act society drama, is by W. A. Tremayne and Irving L. Hall. The scene is laid in a cathedral town in England, and all the scenery and furniture are carried by the company, thus insuring a complete production. Into the midst of the staid and ecclesiastical society which holds its court there, an American girl, (Miss Thurston) has been transplanted from the lands of the great West."

She appears here Saturday night, Nov. 18.

Preparing for Mich. Game

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 14.—With last night's practice Wisconsin entered upon its last week of football training, and when the referee's whistle blows on Saturday, announcing the end of the Michigan game, the Badger football team of 1905 will be a thing of the past. But in this last week before the game which is to settle Wisconsin's chances for the western championship, the coaches intend to concentrate the work of the entire season and make one big effort to place the Badgers on the football map in the middle west.

Hard work with no letup until the game with Michigan is won or lost is the order that has gone forth from the coaches to the players, and the men, with the sole thought of beating Yost's giants in their minds, are directing all their energy to build up a machine that will be just one shade better than the Wolverines can turn out.

CAR KILLS A FARMHAND

RACINE, Wis., Nov. 14.—Anton Macho, a farmhand aged 35 years, was struck by an interurban electric car at Willow Creek Sunday and died while being brought to this city after the accident. The motorman of the car which struck Macho says the man was walking in the middle of the track and refused to get out of the way in spite of warnings from gong and whistle. Macho was a widower. The motorman was not arrested.

Smallpox Among the Blind

JANESVILLE, Wis., Nov. 14.—"We have established a hospital ward out here," said Supt. Harvey Clark of the state institute for the blind yesterday afternoon. "Acting on the advice of Dr. Harper and Dr. Q. O. Sutherland of the state board of health, we have isolated all the cases of varioloid, keeping them entirely separate from the rest of the school. In all we have had fifteen cases. At present there are nine in the sick ward under trained nurses, but no one is in bed and they eat and play like well children. In fact, not one of the students who has had the disease has been in bed. Two new cases developed yesterday and were promptly isolated. Of course we are still quarantined, but this the pupils do not seem to mind at all."

If it is better to KNOW THINGS about prices than to guess and wonder and fret, then it is WORTH WHILE to read the ads.

NO CONFIRMATION OF REPORT ON "BEAVER"

Drs. Wire connections to Cody are very poor and Drs. Powell have been unable to get any word from there thus far today.

FRANK WILLIAMS WEDS MISS LINS

Frank Williams and Miss Louise Lins were united in marriage at nine o'clock this morning in St. Joseph's cathedral at Winona by Rev. Father Meyer. A large number of friends and relatives from this city witnessed the ceremony.

Fred Lins, brother of the bride, was best man, while Miss Ida Williams, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother, after which a reception was held. The young couple leave this evening for Minneapolis, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will make their home on Ninth and La Crosse streets, where they will be at home to friends after December 1st.

The groom is one of the well known young businessmen of the city, being interested with his brother in the conduct of the Hotel La Crosse buffet.

The bride is a charming young lady, very popular in social circles, and has been head stenographer at the Vought-Berger factory for a couple of years.

Lenroot Rally is a Frost

OSHKOSH, Wis., Nov. 14.—A delegation of La Follette men, headed by N. P. Haugen of the state tax commission, made a visit to the city recently to develop sentiment for Lenroot for governor. Summonses were sent out to the supposedly faithful, but most of them were disregarded and the call produced so great a frost that the proposed meeting was abandoned. From talks with leading La Follette men it would appear that the task of organizing Winnebago county for Lenroot will prove impossible, Davidson and Hatten being more popular.

DR. EVENSON GIVES EYES TO THE POOR

Unique Charity of Park Store Optician Brings Joy to Inmates of the Home of the Friendless

Dr. H. C. Evenson, the well known Park store optician, has begun a charitable work in La Crosse that, if sight is a blessing, will bring delight to scores of people suffering from defective eyes. He will give free treatment and provide glasses for deserving members of the Home of the Friendless.

Dr. Evenson originated his plan last year, and at the time fitted up great numbers of people who could not afford to provide themselves with glasses at their own expense. It was a happy day to the older inmates of the home when they were able to enjoy the luxury of reading through perfectly fitting spectacles.

This year Poor Commissioner Sol Burdick is interested in the plan. It has been arranged that in order to prevent the abuse of the generous offer of Dr. Evenson by letting unworthy people or people able to afford glasses and treatment impose themselves upon him, every applicant must come to the doctor armed with an order from the commissioner specifying his or her eligibility to the charity.

The announcement of the renewal of the plan this fall has resulted in a revival of the interest that was shown last autumn. It is a sort of practical philanthropy that appeals to public spirited people, and it is a most fortunate plan for the old people who find their lives so materially brightened by the glimpse of day afforded by accurate glasses, during the darkened years of their physical decline.

JEWISH HUMOR.

Its Flavor of Bitterness and Its Savor of Judaism.

Renan said of the Jews, "The Semitic people are almost entirely without the power to laugh." Surely had he looked for traces of Jewish humor in the light which Heine casts back upon its dark tradition he would never have made so sweeping a statement. For eight years Heine lay upon his "matress grave" in Paris suffering excruciating agony. He deserved, he said, to have awarded to him "the grand medals of pain and misery." Leopold Zunz said almost the same words of the whole Hebrew people, "If there are ranks in suffering, Israel takes precedence of all the nations." The humor of Israel is flavored with bitterness and plays round the greater subjects of thought and of speculation; plays like the humor of a man in pain.

Listen to the lament of a sabbatist born at Arles in 1287 who finds the works of the Jewish law an intolerable burden and seems to have come, like Heine, to the bitter conclusion that "Judaism is not a religion, it is a misfortune."

Oh, hapless sire, distraught with cares, Whose wife to him male children bears, For all of them, or rich or poor, Have only suffering to endure. This is caused by the Jewish creed, Whose yoke is hard to bear indeed. Its many laws and regulations Which are unknown to other nations Every Hebrew must observe With watchful eye and straining nerve; Even though he shares in public functions, He still must follow their injunctions.

The Bible is not half enough; Glasses there are and other stuff In which he erudite must be, Especially in theology. In all the Talmud may relate, In authors' quarrels and debate, In things particularly small, Of no significance at all.

One more medieval quotation, this time from the pen of a Barcelona Jew. The lines can hardly perhaps be called humorous, but they illustrate with a certain terse comedy the great value set by the race upon three things—money, knowledge and domestic happiness. If a man has none of them the poet has no better advice to give him than to hold his tongue or to hang himself:

What is the most useful thing to any man in life? Knowledge or wealth or a good and loving wife. But if none of these commodities man has ever got Then by keeping golden silence he might improve his lot. And if he cannot do so, that poor and hapless knave, Then let him go away at once and dig himself a grave.

On his deathbed Heine made his last joke, and it is typically Jewish. "Reviewing his by no means irreproachable past," he hoped that God might forgive him, "for c'est son metier"—(that is his trade). Another story illustrates yet more perfectly the bitter humor of the Jew. It is the story of a dying rabbi "who had been all his lifetime extremely religious, but had likewise always suffered much want and misery. 'Do you know,' he said to those in the sickroom, 'if after all the sad experiences I have had in the past there is no future life I shall be greatly amused.'"—London Spectator.

The Ladies' Aid society of the English Lutheran church will be entertained tomorrow afternoon by Mrs. Clemens.

Worth Reading

In all the Baking Powder "Wars" that have been intermittently waged in the last twenty years, there is one point that has been overlooked by the belligerent makers of these goods. Rival manufacturers have contended themselves with accusing their competitors of making an unwholesome product. The question of keeping quality, and, therefore, efficiency in raising bread, the only purpose for which baking powder is used, appears to have been generally ignored. There are many powders which, when fresh, and the can is first uncovered, will do fairly good work, but after standing for some time on the pantry shelf, the powder becomes so weak as to be almost worthless as far as raising bread is concerned. This is especially true in the case of the so-called "Phosphate" powders. The unsuccessful attempts to overcome this fault of the "Phosphate" powders has enlisted the services of more chemists and cost more money than the solution of any other problem connected with the raising of bread. Why buy or experiment at your own expense with these Phosphate powders when it is a fact that they will not fulfill the object for which they are purchased. The housewife to whom economy is an object will avoid these "Phosphate" powders.

POSSE PERMITTED MOB TO LYNCH NEGROES

HENDERSON, Tex., Nov. 14.—Without firing a shot in defense of the prisoners they were sworn to protect, the sheriff and jailor of Rusk county allowed a mob of 200 white men to break into the jail, take five negroes from their cells and hang three of them to a sycamore tree in the courthouse yard.

The victims of the lynchers were John Reese, Robert Askew and Henry Schorow, who were accused of the murder of Elias Howell, a week ago. Two other negroes were spared because of the doubt as to their guilt and because they told the full story of the crime to the members of the mob. One was William Williams, who is said to have stood guard while his accomplices were committing the murder, and the other was a negro preacher.

The mob worked so quietly that persons living 100 yards from the jail were not awakened. The 200 men surrounded the jail and demanded that the officers give up the prisoners. There was a short parley, and the officers decided that it was useless to resist, though they were heavily armed and entrenched behind barred doors. The doors of the jail were unlocked for the lynchers, and they made their way to the cellroom.

The prisoners were found cowering in their cells. They begged for mercy as they were being dragged out. The protests of two of them were heeded, but the other three were hurried into the courthouse yard and hanged. Not a shot was fired during the whole proceeding, and as soon as it was certain that the victims of the at least atrocity in Texas were dead, the mob dispersed.

Williams, who was spared, was made to mount a box at the jail door and tell how he stood guard while the three men who were lynched killed their white victim. When he had finished he was returned to his cell and locked up to await action by the court.

The failure of the officers to resist is laid to the suddenness with which the mob appeared. The five negroes were arrested last Wednesday and locked in the jail. There was some talk of lynching at the time, but Judge Levy ordered a special session of the district court to be held at Henderson Nov. 22, and it was thought that the prospect of swift justice had appeased the wrath of the people.

The evidence against the men was not of the strongest, and Sheriff Stone and the county attorney were making every effort to strengthen it. It became noised abroad yesterday that the evidence might not be enough to convict, and then the people decided to take the law into their own hands.

Merchants May Sue City for Delay of Bridge

OSHKOSH, Wis., Nov. 14.—A year ago the second of this month, the bridge that spanned the Fox river from Main street to south Main was condemned and the construction of a new steel bridge was undertaken. The work has been carried on so slowly that now there is little prospect that the structure will be ready this winter for even foot travel. The merchants are up in arms and proceedings are being taken to begin suits against the city for the loss of trade that has been sustained. A mass meeting of indignation is also probable.

TO MERCHANT ADVERTISERS.

It is of importance to every merchant in this city that he know as nearly as possible the relative circulations of the newspapers in which he advertises.

So far as the city is concerned, the most practical way of determining circulation is by a canvass of the entire city. This will eliminate the possibility of "padding."

We therefore make this offer to the La Crosse Retail Merchants' Association:

The Tribune will contribute to the Merchants' Association one-third (1-3) the expense of such a canvass, upon the following conditions:

A committee to have charge of the canvass shall be chosen at a regular meeting of the association, said committee to be elected, and not appointed by the chair.

The fact that said committee is to be elected shall be advertised in the daily papers at least one week prior to said meeting.

Said committee shall employ canvassers to make a systematic canvass of the city, and said canvassers shall report by blocks the exact number of subscribers each paper has in each and every block in the city.

Canvassers shall also make inquiry of subscribers as to whether they have ordered any papers coming to their homes, whether they read them, and expect to pay for them, and whether they have ordered any papers stopped that continue to come to their homes, and whether any such papers are "sample copies," or are delivered on approval.

Of course the Leader-Press and The Chronicle will agree to defray one-third each of this expense, so there should be no delay in causing the canvass to be made. Or perhaps they will decline, "for business reasons."

AS TO INSURANCE "GUARANTEES."

Life insurance is a good thing. Ask the McCurdys and the McCalls and the Hydes. It is a good thing, and these gentlemen have been "pushing it along." Penitentiaries notwithstanding, life insurance is a good thing.

Yesterday a young man representing a well known life insurance company said to a young man who represented himself and a little family, that his company would guarantee him interest on his investment of not less than 18 per cent. Would GUARANTEE 18 per cent, mind you. And this young man was simply a clever insurance writer. He was no McCurdy, or McCall.

The young man of family figured, but his think tank was momentarily unequal to the occasion. Finally, he said: "If you make good on that, I'll promise you that I can induce Mr. Doerflinger to sell out the Park store, and invest his money in insurance." "Then I'll get the Park store," replied the agent, who was young and "game."

Thereafter the man of family inquired further, and found it was this way. The insurance company demanded a premium, at his age, of $50 a year on a 10 payment life. In ten years he would have paid in a total sum of 10 x $50, or $500. Eighteen per cent on $500, says the company, is $90. Therefore, if we pay the man back $90 at the end of ten years, we are paying him 18 per cent. That is our guarantee.

Yep. It is 18 per cent for one year, but the company had the use of some of that money for ten years, and some for nine and some for eight, etc. And the interest is only for ONE year.

The company had the use of the equivalent of $500 for five years, and paid the interest that it computed for a single year. The remainder was "velvet," barring lapses, when it became "eider down."

Life insurance is a good thing. But look over the policies, and find out about some of these "guarantees" before signing. It won't do you any harm.

The insurance in question probably was a good thing even at the basis offered. The "guarantee" should be cut out, that's all.

JUST LIFE

The average man will accept a knocker's word before the truth.

When a man's down in his luck, he's pretty apt to be down in his pluck also.

Real old fashioned charity doesn't work through an advertising bureau.

If you need an overcoat, steal it and take two years in the "Pen." That's rating a convict's earning capacity at about $2.00 a year, when the coat's second hand.

And the Tribune said: "Let there be light," and there IS light.

And now Milwaukee is fighting it out with the honorable John I. Beggs.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PASS IT UP.

Strive not for vile and sordid wealth. For happiness you cannot buy. With bounding and abundant health, What odds although your cash is shy? The experts tell us wealth brings care, That life with money is a bore, But they are striving for their share, And really for a whole lot more.

Wealth brings but worry and distress. A burglar may break in at night And help himself to more or less Of all the costly things in sight; The tax collector runs you down; Poor people come around to beg, And every fellow in the town Tries earnestly to pull your leg.

And, after all, what will it buy, This sordid wealth for which we strive? Just food and raiment, bread and pie, An automobile or a yacht, Choice real estate, a woman's smile, Books, pictures and a corner lot— You see yourself it's not worth while.

No; paying all he gets for rent And going with his elbows out Will make the thoughtful man content— That is the kind you read about. Oh, why will men, to beat the band, Get out and scrape for yellow pelf I really cannot understand, Though I am after it myself.

One Kind.

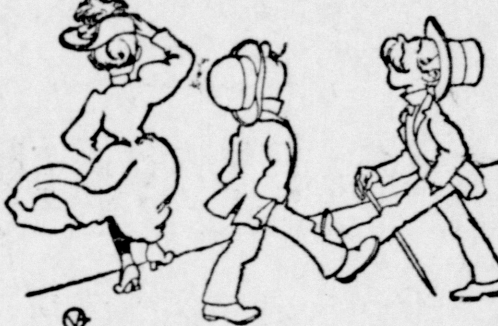

"Does the city issue permits for prize fighting?" asked the swell dresser, approaching a window in the city hall.

"No, sir. It's against the law," replied the clerk.

"I was told you did," said the man, turning to go.

"Hold on," said the clerk. "Come back; my mistake. You get the marriage licenses at the window across the hall."

Takes Their Eye.

When lovely women cross the street, If it's a windy day, Men should be looking at the skies, But they're not built that way.

So Called.

"What is the legislature wrangling about?"

"A bill to suppress disreputable saloons."

"Sort of a 'joint' debate, I take it."

The Last Resort.

"He had pawned everything else he had, so as a last resort he put himself in soak."

"How could he possibly do that?"

"He jumped in the lake."

Autumn.

Comes autumn with its paints and brush, Its colors bright and glowing, And other artists puts to blush With its tremendous showing. The forest is a crimson flare Of red and yellow shading. And in the meadows everywhere Is goldenrod parading.

The tree tops in the ancient wood Their banners gay are flying To celebrate in merry mood, Although the year is dying. And in the valley down below And in the distant hollow The yellow and the purple glow Far as the eye can follow.

No Miracle.

"Did I understand that he claimed to be able to cast out devils?"

"No; he is just an artist at throwing would be sons-in-law out through the window."

Great Possibilities.

"What was it Sampson slew so many with?"

"The jawbone of an ass, I believe."

"Oh, yes. I was just thinking what he might have done if he had had an automobile."

Repentance is apt to be genuine if a fellow gets caught.

A Tragedy With a Moral

(This story is vouched for by Adv. Mgr. Fredericks, of the Park store, who indorses the moral.)

"'Twas a dark and stormy night." Gladys Eastlake stepped lightly from the car at her street corner. She was returning from the Young Ladies' Knocking Circle, and hummed softly to herself as she thought of the toast she had given her dearest friend. With her home only a few steps distant, she felt no fear as she tripped lightly heartedly on.

Suddenly she was startled by the parting of the bushes at the side of the road, when, without warning, two burly ruffians seized her and bound her hand and foot. Unable to move or scream, the beautiful maiden found herself being put into a gunny sack and lifted into a vehicle. Then she heard the door slam and the carriage drive rapidly down the street.

She tried to release herself from her gag, but alas! she was bound too securely. She heard the muffled conversation of the men who had attacked her; they were discussing where they should take her. It finally seemed that they reached a decision, and shortly the carriage stopped. She felt herself being carried into a building. Fainting and gasping for breath, the sack was taken from her head. The villain, still masked, took the gag from her mouth, his eyes burning like coals of fire through his black mask. As he released her he hissed through his clenched teeth, "There, my pretty bird, scream as hard as you like, no human ear will ever hear you. You are in my power! Do you hear me? Totally in my power!" "Pity, pity, where am I?" she gasped. "In a store that never advertises," was the cruel response. "Alas, alas," she moaned, "no power on earth can save me now; no one ever comes here!" and the poor girl fainted.—Ex.

BREAD OR A STONE.

Can you read about that procession of the thousands of starving women who paraded the streets of London crying for bread without feeling that in some ways modern society has made a dismal failure?

These women are the wives of English workmen for whom there is no chance to work under the present system of things.

Yet times are not hard in England. There is no depression of industries. There is simply no demand for unskilled labor and these men are common laborers. They want to work. They beg for work. And winter is just begun. They are not paupers, but they will be. There is nothing ahead of them but the crowded workhouse.

And as disheartening as the sad procession of the women was the reply of Balfour to the delegation.

He offered the workmen absolutely no hope. Even worse.

He—premier of England—gave them a lecture on the dangers of Socialism!

They asked for bread and he gave them a stone.

Which is the worse of the two evils—"destruction of the springs of national enterprise and energy," or the pauperizing of thousands of honest men, willing and anxious to work?

Modern civilization confronts a condition and not a theory.

Mincing phrases about "paternalism" cannot cure the cruel condition of forced idleness, hunger, cold, misery and starvation—a condition which, if it is incurable, is enough to make human brains feel bankrupt and humane hearts grow sick.

REWARD FOR FIRE-BUG STARTS AMATEURS

MARINETTE, Wis., Nov. 14.—The offer of a $50 reward by Chief of Police Cook brought out an increased lot of amateur detectives last night and it seems impossible for the firebug to start any more fires without discovery. It is believed now by some that the case is a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde parallel, some man posing as respectable during the day and becoming a frenzied maniac at night imbued with a desire for destruction. The curious manner of the man's disappearance each night puzzles the police. He manages to bob up at unexpected places and when chased disappears instantly.

LUXURY

The housewife who plans a big spread for Thanksgiving has something to think about for, according to the small householder, the man be sky high this year. An increase of from 10 to 25 per cent in the price of Thanksgiving commodities is noted according to the following resume of the situation in the Chicago Chronicle:

Thanksgiving day this year gives promise of being anything but an occasion for giving thanks on the part of the small householder, the man who works for a living or the moderately poor, to say nothing of those extremely poor who have been accustomed to the treat of rabbit stew at the soup kitchens as a means of stimulating their gratitude.

Not only are prices soaring on what may be called the celebrant viands of the occasion, but the adjunct necessities are also mounting upward at an alarming rate. Mince meat will either be forsworn this year or it will be necessary to eschew the apples, as the price of the fruit has almost doubled as compared with last year's prices.

Nearly every dealer on South Water street predicts that the present prices of all foodstuff will be materially augmented without any prospect of recession until after the winter holidays, if then. Inquiries at the markets for all kinds of viands revealed an increase of from 10 per cent to 25 per cent over last year, and in every case the expressed opinion was that present conditions were favorable compared to what might be expected in the immediate future.

The main advance that will affect the Thanksgiving festivities was noted in apples. Two years ago the retail merchants were getting their box goods at $2 and even as low as $1.75. Last year the price rose to $2.25 as a maximum. This year the price has already risen from $3.10 as a minimum and many dealers along the street state authoritatively that it will go as high as $6 and $7 before the festival season is over.

Even the old cornfield pumpkin has risen from 15 to 20 per cent in value over last year's market at this date. Squash has followed the lead of the sister produce and the pumpkin pies of traditional memory will be numbered among the luxuries at the feast of Great Thursday. Thrifty housewives of the lower middle class will doubtless fall back on the old cream and vinegar pies, so dear to the memory of the Illinois pioneer.

But it is not only field and orchard that are leagued against the housekeeper. The very waters of the sea and lakes have refused their yield. Fish will be from 10 to 15 per cent higher than last season, with little promise of decrease until the spring catch. Lobsters, which last year brought only 20 cents, are now bringing 23 to 25 cents per pound. Soft shell crabs have risen from 20 to 30 per cent at all markets. White fish and the more common varieties of fresh water take are from 10 to 12 per cent higher. Salt water cured fish, such as herring, cod and salt mackerel, have made no appreciable advance.

GLENMONT PRACTICALLY A NEW BOAT

After having undergone improvements to the extent of $7,000, the steamer Glenmont, the property of ex-Governor Van Sant of Minnesota, dashed down the cradles into the river at Dubuque Friday afternoon. The boat is practically new. A new hull has been made for the craft, the upper works are practically new and the machinery vastly improved. The tonnage of the boat will be greatly increased as a result of this latter fact. The Glenmont has lain at the ship yards since last April and has constantly been worked on by a force of carpenters under the supervision of Ship Yardmaster Porter. The boat will spend the winter in the ice harbor and will be towed down by the steamer Cowles.

Ex-Governor Van Sant, the owner of the rebuilt craft, will have it listed under a new governmental number and may also change the name. The craft will be engaged in tug towing from Stillwater to southern points and will be one of the first boats out in the spring.

The Eagle Point shipyards will certainly be a busy spot this winter. An extra large force of ship carpenters will find work there and at all times during the winter a boat will be on the cradles and others waiting at the dock. The steamer C. W. Cowles, for the past season engaged as a rafter, but for the past few weeks laid up in the harbor, will be the next to be repaired and will go to the yards at once. A general overhauling will be what she will receive. Many and extensive repairs will be made on her, after which she will give way to the Sidney, which has lain at Eagle Point for some months.

They had been out only a short time when the dogs got to fighting. Mr. Schultz very carelessly and without thinking took his gun by the barrel and began to pound the dogs to separate them. This was a very dangerous way to hold or handle a loaded gun and it had its fatal effect on the gentleman who was using it.

The trigger came in contact with some object with force enough to discharge the load which entered Mr. Schultz's breast and lodging in his lungs caused death an hour later. Everything was done for his recovery and medical assistance was summoned but the wound was too severe and death could not be avoided.

He sat on the end of the pier, his broad back against a stanchion and his long legs dangling over the water. He was a vigorous, athletic young fellow, with calm gray eyes and a jaw that suggested stubbornness. Near by on a little rail that ran along one side of the pier, sat a girl in white, with a bit of color in her sunburned cheeks and a touch of angry fire in her eyes. Below them the calm water of the lake reflected the red glow of the western sky. A small sailboat and a canoe, tied to the pier, lay motionless on the mirrorlike water.

"And why, pray," said the girl petulantly, "can't we start now? It's a long sail to the island, and we shall be late."

"I want to make sure of that fellow's intentions," he replied, pointing to a dull gray cloud just showing an edge in the southwest.

The girl laughed mockingly. "You're not afraid of that?" she asked.

"I've encountered three of them at various times here," he replied. "They imbued me with a very wholesome respect for their kind."

"I didn't think you were the sort of man to be afraid of a cloud," she said

"Oh, let's risk it," she said. "I'll take the consequences. That lifts the responsibility off your shoulders."

"We'll wait a bit," said he. "I believe you're afraid on your own account," she taunted.

"Very possibly," he said quietly. The girl bit her lips. She slid from the rail and came close beside him.

"You're a coward!" she said, with slow distinctness.

The young man did not lift his eyes. She saw the blood rush into his face and his jaw set grimly.

"Perhaps," he said, with strange gentleness.

The girl stood quite still for a moment, with flashing eyes and little hands tightly clenched.

"You are," she said, "you are!" She stepped across the pier and began to untie the painter of the canoe.

"Don't do that!" he said sharply, springing up. But before he could restrain her she was in the canoe and clear of the pier. She turned to wave the paddle defiantly.

"I'm going down to the island," she called. "I'll tell them I left you here waiting for a cloud to pass over. Adieu, Sir Caution!"

"Little fool!" he growled, and, hurrying across the pier, he untied the sailboat, stepped in and pushed off.

There was not enough breeze to give him headway. The boat drifted idly, with flapping sail. Far away he heard a peal of derisive laughter. The girl, paddling steadily, was just disappearing around the point.

He looked anxiously at the southwest. The cloud had changed from gray to black. It was mounting the sky like a race horse. The dull boom of distant thunder shook the air. He shortened sail down to the last reef and waited.

Higher and higher came the cloud, and as it crept up the sky its edges took on a livid green. The red afterglow of twilight was suddenly blotted out, and the water became lumpy black. The first flashes struck him. The boat careened and went tearing down the lake. From the woods across the lake came a deep, steady roar that told him the wind was coming in earnest. He gripped tiller and sheet and shut his teeth.

As he reached the point he saw the canoe just ahead rolling madly and threatening momentarily to upset. He could see the girl, a ghastly spot of white against the blackness of sky and water, paddling frantically in her efforts to reach the shore. He shot the boat into the wind alongside, scrambled to the rail and pulled her in. With no waste of time he dropped her across a seat and sprang to the tiller just as the full fury of the wind caught them. The sail filled with a noise like the crack of a heavy rifle, and the boat careened dangerously, then righted heavily as he let go the sheet.

The girl, with white face and frightened eyes, clung to the rail.

"What—what have I done?" she gasped between her chattering teeth.

"Done?" he cried bitterly. "You've nearly drowned yourself, and you may drown us both yet. God knows!"

She shrank as from a physical blow, but he had no time to notice it. He pulled a knife from his pocket and flung it to her.

"Open that and stand by the halcyons. Cut them quickly if I tell you to."

A blinding shaft of light streamed from the sky, accompanied simultaneously by a deafening crash. Then the rain came down in torrents, shutting them in with a gray wall. There was a sharp report. The mainsheet had parted.

"The halcyons—quick!" he yelled.

"The halcyons—quick!" he yelled.

Patterns For a Charming Street Suit For a Maid Designed by Martha Dean—Nos. 4693 and 4694

The well dressed girl counts the modish street suit as one of the most important items in her wardrobe. Such a suit is appropriate to almost any kind of wear, and with several blouses of varying dressiness she may be well gowned for the majority of occasions. The smartest of the new suits are plaited in box and side effect, and it is a mode especially becoming to slender figures. One of the latest models is shown here. The coat is an Eton reaching only to the top of the girdle and hanging in loose box effect, assisted by the deep plaits, which resemble double box plaits. The fancy stole collar, edged with a narrow plaiting of taffeta, serves as adornment. The sleeve is three-quarter length and ends in a becoming frill. Two plaits stitched in tuck effect appear at each seam of the skirt. It is a seven gored model and flares gracefully at the bottom. Serge, cheviot or voile will prove satisfactory material for this suit, which is very simple to construct. Two patterns—No. 4693, sizes 12 to 16 years; No. 4694, three sizes, 12 to 16 years.

DIRECTIONS FOR ORDERING

The Central Fortress of Russia.

The Kremlin, which in Russian means the fortress, stands within an inclosure of about two miles near the center of the city of Moscow and is triangular in form. It contains palaces, three cathedrals and monuments and is surrounded by a high wall with eighteen strong towers and five gates. Over the principal entrance, called the "Redeemer's Gate," is a picture of the Saviour, and even the emperor must remove his hat as he passes through this portal. In the Cathedral of the Assumption, founded in 1326, Russian emperors have been crowned for 300 years. In the Cathedral of the Archangel Michael emperors were buried up to the time of Peter the Great, and in the Cathedral of the Annunciation many of them have been baptized and married. The Great tower contains thirty-four bells, and near it is the Tsar Kolokol, or Emperor bell, the largest in the world. The chief streets of Moscow lead from the Kremlin like the spokes of a wheel.

A Fight Among the Kurds.

Colonel P. H. H. Massy tells of this battle which he witnessed in the course of his explorations in Asiatic Turkey.

The cause of the fight was an attempted theft of sheep. He says: "Some flocks were being driven off across the Sipkahi Kurds' border when the usual alarm signals, shots fired and smoke fires kindled at all the villages around, brought clouds of horsemen galloping wildly across in that direction. This did not look very reassuring in the middle of so wild a country, where a human life is never worth that of a good sheep, but we soon perceived, by the yelling Kurds with grinning faces who dashed past us, that to us no harm was intended."

"We reached the village not far from which the battle was raging to find the flat roofs occupied by all the women. Quite regardless of stray bullets they followed the fluctuating fortunes of their side amid the din of their own shrill tongues, which almost drowned the thundering reports of the Kurdish powder, anything but noiseless or smokeless."

"It was soon over. The flocks were triumphantly brought back, together with the bodies of a few dead Kurds and some others wounded. We passed on amid the wailing of the women just widowed in a fight for a few sheep."

Goodby to the Sergeant.

Doherty was drilling with his squad of recruits in London. Doherty was nearly six feet two inches in height, and at that time the sergeant major was a man whose height was only five feet four inches. On this day he approached the squad looking sharply about him for some fault to find.

All the men squared up except Doherty, and the sergeant major at once accosted him.

"Head up there, man!" called he. Doherty raised his head slightly.

"Up higher, sir!"

The head was raised again. Then the sergeant major managed by standing on his toes to reach Doherty's chin, and he poked it higher, with the remark:

"That's better. Don't let me see your head down again."

By this time everybody was interested at seeing Doherty staring away above the sergeant major's head, when a voice from above said in a rich brogue:

"Am I to be always like this, sergeant major?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then I'll say goodby to ye, sergeant major, for I'll never see ye again."—London Tit-Bits.

Luck or Good Management.

"I heard Crabbe say he had never had such luck in his business as he's having now, but I didn't understand whether it was good luck or bad."

"Oh, he meant bad luck, of course! If it were good luck he wouldn't speak of it as 'luck' at all."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE BERGH PLAN

OF PIANO SELLING

SAVES YOU MONEY

We know you'll be interested in our plan of piano selling, especially if you need a piano now or if you are going to purchase an instrument in the near or even distant future.

Lest you forget, we tell you of this plan over and over again and for your sake as well as our own, we cannot tell it too often.

A PLAN THAT HELPS YOU, HELPS US

We consider it "high understanding" to make a reasonable profit on the sale of a large number of instruments instead of a large profit on the sale of a few. Our plan is nothing more nor less than fair, square dealing, marking each instrument on our floors in plain figures according to the factory cost of each and not selling them on the haphazard, get-all-you-can plan, which is in vogue elsewhere.

OUR ONE PRICE PLAN SAVES YOU MONEY

Saves you $55 on $200 Pianos—Saves you $90 on $350 Pianos.
Saves you $65 on $250 Pianos—Saves you $100 on $450 Pianos.
Saves you $75 on $300 Pianos—Saves you $125 on $550 Pianos.

The "Light" of a Store "Hidden Under a Bushel" Ceases to be a Light At All

Publicity, which is the light of a store, should not be snuffed out now and then. Some merchants think that to keep this light always burning costs too much—but, for that matter, so do many other things cost too much.

For example: Your store rent is too high—when your business is poor; you have too many clerks—for a dull day. Yet these things don't worry you for a moment when things are moving, everybody busy or overworked—especially your cashiers—and when you wish you had more room, more clerks, more stock.

Of course you never had one of those busy days that was not the result of aggressive advertising. And you never had a blue trade day that did not follow a practical hiding of the publicity light.

"ENTERPRISE IN SPOTS" yields, at best, only spots of prosperity. A steady "store light" of increasing candle power—inches of space used daily—with the "snuffers" and the "bushels" sent to the cellar—and store growth and expansion will come in a measure that will amaze you.

"Out of sight, out of mind," sums up the plight of the occasional advertiser.

FEMINE INTUITION.

The brilliant person. Circumstances beyond our control sometimes oblige us to meet brilliant people. Secretly we may feel a desire to avoid them, but there is a certain pride which compels us to appear at ease in their company even though we never were more uncomfortable. The man who bristles with information may not be unnecessarily unkind. We are, it is true, obliged to listen to him, and it is always wise to be on our guard against revealing the fact that we know anything at all lest he have the opportunity, which he dearly loves, of correcting us. We can in a measure throw ourselves on his mercy, and if we have an ordinary constitution we may happily survive his attacks of knowledge. But when a brilliant person rises upon our horizon there is little hope for us. If he does not hulk us at once with a straight shot he will worry us to death by a fusillade of repartee and leave us a wreck to drift away to some friendly port of dullness where we can be nursed back to our mediocre existence.—Life.

WILLIAM GRAY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WHILE HUNTING

Former North Side Man Stumbles Against Stump and is Killed by Discharge of Weapon

William Gray, Sr., of 1312 Avon street, received a telegram last evening stating that his son William M. Jr., had been accidentally shot and killed while on a deer hunting expedition.

Just how the accident occurred will probably never be known but is certain that it was purely accidental as the place where the body was found would indicate that he could very easily have slipped and fallen and caused an accidental discharge of his gun.

The most authentic theory given out at Tamarack where the accident occurred is that he slipped and fell near a deer runaway the gun exploding and causing instantaneous death. A stump near by showed where he had been standing and where the trigger of the gun very likely caught. The other sportsmen missed him and started out to scour the woods in search of him as they thought something must have befallen him. When found his body was nearly cold.

The body was brought to Staples, the party arriving there about noon today. The remains will be laid in state at that place and will leave there about two tomorrow morning enroute to La Crosse where they will arrive about noon.

Mr. William H. Gray was forty years of age. He was born in Louisville, Ky., and came to this city when but five years of age and when twenty years of age went out west where he accepted a position on the railroad and was promoted to the duties of a conductor shortly after. He has been a conductor on the Northern Pacific for the past 16 years, running between Fargo and Staples.

He joined the Masons at Fargo and they will have charge of the remains.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed but interment will be made at the family lot at West Salem.

Mr. Gray was a great sportsman and loved to hunt deer very much, and as the vicinity of Staples abounded in that kind of game he went hunting very often. He was always in the best of health and the news of his sudden death came as a great shock.

Taken to Mendota for Treatment

Miss Annie Olson of George street was removed to the asylum at Mendota today for treatment.

She is a sister of Mrs. Ed. Marking and had been employed at the Hixon home on the south side for some time until of late when she began acting somewhat queer. She was taken to the home of her sister where she has been for the past few weeks but as she gradually grew worse she was removed to the institution today.

BURLINGTON NOTES

John R. Ritter of Charles street was painfully injured yesterday while attending to his usual duties at the Burlington shops.

The regular meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Trainmen was held last evening at the Fjelstad's hall. Three new members were initiated into the order. They are William Ludiger, Thomas Dugan and Ed Gorder.

MILWAUKEE NOTES.

Charles Froesch who has been laying off on account of illness for some time resumed his duties today.

Engine No. 1108, "The Jonah," is in the round house for repairs.

NORTH SIDE BRIEFS

Mr. Lynam's mother, Mrs. James Lynam who was here from her home at Elroy to attend the funeral services of the late Mrs. Jerry Lynam returned to her home this afternoon.

HE COULD HARDLY GET UP.

P. H. Duffy of Ashley, Ill., writes: "This is to certify that I have taken two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure and it has helped me more than any other medicine. I tried many advertised remedies, but none of them gave me any relief. My druggist recommended Foley's Kidney Cure and it has cured me. Before commencing its use I was in such a shape that I could hardly get up when once down." Sold by J. A. Erhart & Son.

QUESTIONS ROOSEVELT'S SQUARE DEAL

The Chicago Journal, evidently a trust supported paper—or at least enjoying large favors from the monopolies, thus questions Roosevelt's "square deal policy" in its issue of Nov. 6th.

"When Commissioner Garfield went to the Chicago packers and asked permission to inspect their books, the condition was made that no information he might obtain therefrom would be used in court proceedings against them.

"Mr. Garfield gave this pledge, it is stated, and the packers allowed him to study their business in all its details from the inside.

"Now, it is announced, the results of his study have been turned over to the government department of justice to be employed in legal prosecution of the packers.

"Is this what President Roosevelt loves so well under the name of a 'square deal for every man'?"

"Commissioner Garfield would not have ventured to give the pledge that was demanded by the packers without instructions from Washington, probably from the president himself. He pledged, not his own word, but the government's. It is not his good faith, but the government's, that is in question now.

"The Journal has no concern for the packers, except as they are citizens of Chicago. If it can be proved that they are guilty of engaging in a conspiracy in restraint of trade, they ought to be punished.

But their guilt, if they are guilty, must be fairly proved. They must be given a square deal.

"Since the government has elevated its vision to such a height as to overlook the nest of defiant criminal trusts in New Jersey, almost within the shadow of the capitol dome, in order to fasten itself a thousand miles away upon Chicago, the government and the president cannot be too careful to avoid suspicion that they are more anxious to prosecute western offenders than offenders in the east.

"Some of the methods already employed in this case have not been particularly distinguished for decency. When the government breaks into a man's house and steals his private papers, when it drags the wives of packinghouse employees into court and puts them under heavy bonds, it is hardly dignified, not to say honorable, nor even respectable.

"Now is a good time for President Roosevelt to show whether his talk about 'giving every man a square deal' is something more than an empty phrase."

PIONEER FOUND DEAD

MENOMONEE FALLS, Wis., 14.—De Witt M. Pickel, a pioneer, was found dead in the barnyard of his home early yesterday morning shortly after he arose to do his morning chores. Mr. Pickel was 65 years of age, and was one of the best known residents of the town.

MAKE BIG STRIKE AT MONTFORT

MONTFORT, Wis., Nov. 14.—There is new excitement here because of the strike on the David's land, where at 100 feet workmen went through eighteen inches of sheet rock. It appears to be a continuation of the vein that underlies the Consolidated company's land, where the mill is nearly completed, and will start milling on the 800 ton ore pile by Dec. 15. The ore from the David's land will be tested by a run through the Consolidated mill after it reduces its own stock pile.

FATAL FIRE IN CELL

LAKE CITY, Ia., Nov. 14.—Geo. W. Butterick and William Jackson were burned to death in the city jail in a fire started by Butterick. Two others, J. Hippi and Isaac Allen, were rescued. All had been arrested but half an hour before for disorderly conduct. Relatives of the dead men threaten criminal prosecution of the prison officials, alleging negligence. The officers, however, declare it is plainly a case of murder and suicide.

Horse Breeding at the U. W.

The University of Wisconsin has published a profusely illustrated bulletin of 128 pages, entitled "The Principles and Practice of Horse Breeding," prepared by Professor A. S. Alexander in charge of the department of Horse Breeding. The purpose of this bulletin is to awaken a deeper interest in the great subject of horse breeding in Wisconsin and gives valuable information thereon. No state in the Union possesses greater advantages than ours for rearing fine quality horses and the effort of the University is full of promise. Every lover of the horse, every owner of a stallion, brood mare, or colt, should read this bulletin.

Copies of this bulletin will be sent to residents of Wisconsin, free of charge, upon receipt of postal card giving the address and asking for bulletin 127. Non-residents desiring a copy of the bulletin should send a two-cent stamp to pay cost of mailing.

TWO THANKSGIVING DAYS IN 1848

JANESVILLE, Wis., Nov. 14.—In the year 1848, according to the statement of D. F. Sayre, one of the oldest residents of Rock county, this section of southern Wisconsin celebrated two Thanksgiving days. Nelson Dewey was territorial governor and was not regarded as a very religious man. During his first year of office he had allowed the month of November to pass without making any proclamation of a day to be set apart for general thanksgiving. Another year had rolled by, and there was every indication that the day was again to be ignored. Whereupon a Janesville constable by the name of Martin Dewey issued a proclamation setting aside a day for prayer and thanks, signed it "M. Dewey," and had it published in a local paper. Thinking it was a typographical error in initials people generally prepared to celebrate the day, not only in this immediate vicinity, but in other places where the newspapers had copied the manifesto with "corrections."

This piece of impudence finally came to the notice of Dewey and he proceeded to issue the bona-fide proclamation, fixing the day a fortnight later than that assigned by his namesake, the constable. Preparations had already been made to observe the constable's day and the inhabitants who had been exasperated by the governor's tardiness refused to make any change in plans. So both days were celebrated, but of the two the constable's was more generally and devoutly observed.
